From: Martin Sandberg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/20/01 12:38pm
Subject: Stiffer penalties

It is time and past time to start actually undoing the damage that Microsoft has done.

Currently it is impossible to secure Venture funding for any desktop application development. One could argue that this drove far too much money into the internet - Microsoft wasn't there, so you could actually build a company without it being destroyed by Microsoft.

Far from harming the economy, a truly effective set of sanctions (I favor breaking them into at LEAST 4 companies with the exact same rights to all the code) could bring the desktop back to life, prevent them from destroying the internet and produce a huge boom!

Martin
Happy Mac developer